

Analyst Position at Macroeconomic Advisers, Washington, DC

Macroeconomic Advisers, LLC is an economic consulting firm with offices in St. Louis and Washington, DC specializing in macroeconomic forecasting. The DC office directs MA's Monetary Policy Insights service, which provides analysis to major financial firms and central banks around the world on the implications of the U.S. economic outlook and monetary policy prospects for the fixed-income markets. The principals of the DC office are Laurence H. Meyer, a former governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Antulio N. Bomfim, former Fixed-Income Portfolio Manager at OFI Institutional Asset Management, the institutional investments division of OppenheimerFunds, Inc. MA is looking for analysts to work directly with principals to support this service.

Education

B.A. with degree in economics or finance with an exceptional academic record. Coursework in macroeconomics a must. Additional coursework in finance and econometrics highly recommended.

Required Skills

- Excellent computer skills; Analysts will be expected to develop programming skills in EViews and Matlab as needed
- Ability to write clearly and speak articulately
- Effective research and analytical skills
- Desire to take initiative
- Attention to detail and strong organizational skills
- Ability to work well with others in small team environment
- Genuine interest in macroeconomics and financial markets

Responsibilities

Analysts will provide analytical support to the principals, including maintaining and running various models of the economy, monetary policy, and fixed-income markets. There are opportunities to work on special projects that can evolve into commentaries that are distributed directly to clients. Analysts also participate in substantive discussions with the principals about the economic outlook and monetary policy prospects. Analysts' responsibilities also include maintaining databases, preparing presentations, and editing commentaries that are distributed to clients.

Compensation

Competitive salary and benefits (including fully paid healthcare benefits), signing bonus, and opportunity to earn end-of-year bonus.

Application

Please send resume and cover letter to Michelle Bahamonde-Santeli, at msanteli@macroadvisers.com